Body Found In Area Of Previous Deaths

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — The body of a nude girl has been found in the same place where two other girls' bodies were found late last year, the sheriff's office reported today.

The newly discovered slaying may be the sixth in a series of unsolved disappearances of young women during the past 18 months in the Santa Rosa area, about 60 miles north of San Francisco and 125 miles north of the Santa Cruz resort area which was called the "murder capital of the world" after a series of slayings earlier this year.

Four bodies of nude young women have been found since last autumn. Another girl is missing.

The body of the latest victim was found Tuesday night near Franz Valley Road, about eight miles northeast of Santa Rosa, in hilly countryside. It was discovered by a motorcyclist who stopped when he smelled a foul odor.

The body was partly decomposed. No clothing or identification was in the area. An autopsy was under way to learn the cause of death.

Officers said it appeared the body had been thrown over the side of the road in the same place where two nude bodies were found late last year.

The two bodies found last December were identified as Yvonne Weber, 14, and Maureen Sterling, 14, who had disappeared the previous February at a Santa Rosa skating rink. Cause of their deaths could not be determined.

In March, 1972, the body of Kim Wendy Allen, 19, a Santa Rosa junior college student, was found, nude and strangled, near Enterprise Road in the Valley of the Moon area.

The body of Lori Kursa, was found nude on an embankment near the Calistoga Road east of Santa Rosa last December. She had been missing more than a month.

Still missing is Jeanette Kamabele, also a student, who disappeared while hitchiking near Cotati on April 25, 1972.

Lanes To Close

The state Division of Highways announced today that traffic will be reduced to one lane east and westbound from the west gate of San Quentin Prison to the Larkspur City limits from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday to permit widening and realignment of the roadway

Appraiser Incomes Are Listed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Forty-three of the state's 156 fee-paid inheritance tax referees garnered incomes of more than $20,000 last year in the parttime job, according to annual reports filed with the state controller's office.

The highest income was $43,343 reported by William Grohne, a San Francisco certified public accountant appointed to the state job in 1968 by Controller Houston Flournoy.

The second highest figure, $41,345, was reported by Robert L. Bletcher, a Santa Barbara attorney appointed to the state post in 1967.

The referees appraise the estates of dead Californians and are paid fees from the estates.

Seven of the referees reported incomes of more than $30,000, 30 netted from $15,000 to $20,000 and 22 from $10,000 to $15,000, the 1972 income and expense reports showed Tuesday.

Most referees hold other full-time positions, such as attorneys or accountants. They are appointed to four-year terms by Flournoy, after passing an examination.

Their fee is one-tenth of 1 per cent of the estate value up to $500,000 and one-twentieth of 1 per cent on anything above that figure.

In addition to Grohne and Bletcher, referees netting more than $30,000 included A. Russel Gallaway of Monterey County; Raymond P. Chapot, Contra Costa County; Paul A[illegible] of Los Angeles County; Philip L. Reyes of San Francisco; and Albert A. Irmiriam of Los Angeles County.

Three referees reported net losses. They included Stephen A. Nye of San Francisco, $7,972. Russell J. Kirk, Imperial County, $3,184; and John D. Hatfield, Imperial County, $230.
