Residents Find More Parts Of Woman's Severed Body

More parts of a woman's severed body were found by Oklahoma City police Tuesday in the same area where a severed arm was discovered at week police said.

Police said the body of an Indian woman about 20 to 25 years of age was found by two children Thursday night in an alley in the 600 block of N Central.

A hand was found Friday, and Saturday afternoon more human tissue was found by area residents in a weedy vacant lot adjacent to the alley.

Except for the hand, all the pieces have been under six inches in diameter, they said.

A search through police files for fingerprints matching those of the hand has been negative so far, said Detective Joe Owen. But "random checks" will be made.
