

Murder, disappearance still being investigated

Center News Service
Waverly—Police Tuesday were continuing to follow up leads on the whereabouts of Miss Fleming, 19, missing from Waverly since Nov. 28. Chief of Police Clarence Wickham said Tuesday officers had some indications the missing woman may have gone to Waterloo on the night she disappeared. He said Miss Fleming apparently was a follower of three boys playing in the area. They are Hildebrand, Eshbach, and Hal Carter, a group that has played at the Vardaman hut night.

Waverly—The Waverly City Council voted Monday night to do away with two-year appointments for the city's appointed officials. "I don't think that the phrase 'without cause' is right," said Mayor Blain. "People work because of love and honor. After this, they would work out of fear. I don't like that kind of a situation." Councilmember Dick Cook added if the city had provisions for city employees, how would that work out of fear? Cook said that such provisions do not exist. The vote to do away with two-year appointments was 4-1, with councilman Grant Kistner dissenting. In order to pass the law, the council and cited readings were waived with a similar 4-1 vote. APPOINTED OFFICIALS included the city clerk, deputy clerk, treasurer, city attorney, chief of police, and

Waverly woman gets early gift

Center News Service
Waverly—An unidentified Waverly woman is enjoying a pre-Christmas gift. The $20 bill she had Friday night has been found and returned to her. When clearing the bus, Walter Christmas Tree lot on West Bremer Avenue that evening, John Burman found the bill hidden against the stacked Christmas trees. "We had no way of knowing whom it had belonged to," said Burman. The woman called the lot and asked if she had given a $20 bill instead of a $1 bill for the purchase.
