

st.louis/sunday

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1977
SECTION 1-B

Auto Crime Down 90 Pct. Since Bombing

By MARJORIE MANDEL
Of The Post-Dispatch Staff

Automobile burglaries and auto crimes have decreased 90 per cent in South County since the bombing of the South County Center last week. Police Sgt. Clarence B. Smith said.

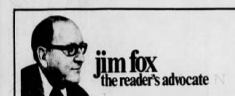

Police have received more than 100 leads since Mrs. Flynn's death and have arrested 10 persons, he said. "There are four leads here which are being investigated," he said.

Police have received more than 100 leads since Mrs. Flynn's death and have arrested 10 persons, he said. "There are four leads here which are being investigated," he said.

Police have received more than 100 leads since Mrs. Flynn's death and have arrested 10 persons, he said. "There are four leads here which are being investigated," he said.

Police have received more than 100 leads since Mrs. Flynn's death and have arrested 10 persons, he said. "There are four leads here which are being investigated," he said.

Police have received more than 100 leads since Mrs. Flynn's death and have arrested 10 persons, he said. "There are four leads here which are being investigated," he said.

Jim Fox, the reader's advocate

A letter, a long one, was received, it was a thousand words. Two points were recently published in the Post-Dispatch have been seen with these headlines in the column.

Mallory Seeking Improvement Of Students' Writing

By ERIC L. HICKLER
Of The Post-Dispatch Staff

Missouri Commissioner of Education Arthur J. Mallory, combined with his staff, is seeking to improve the quality of writing by high school students.

Mallory said he is forming a special committee to study reports that writing abilities of high school graduates have deteriorated since the late 1960s.

CHAMBERLAIN WATERFOLI. One of about 100 outdoor gas lamps that adorn fountains and ponds in the St. Louis area.

Proposed Gas Lamp Ban Angers Many Residents

By RALPH WILLIAMS
and SALLY HENRY DEFTY
Of The Post-Dispatch Staff

Proposals of the ban over that gas lamps are not commonly agreed to that they can be turned on and off, but both counties.

Wolf Found Blameless In Injury

By SALLY HENRY DEFTY
Of The Post-Dispatch Staff

A wolf named Sophie was found — in either — on a property in a Chicago suburb Friday that Margaret Perkins called a landmark.

Sophie the Wolf from the way a wolf in the wild acts about you, said that a recalled wolf would avoid the, one growl, one display of hostility.