Teachers did legal homework for bill

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — About 300 public school teachers did their political homework Thursday to lobby for a collective bargaining bill. Several lawmakers reported by telephone from the House floor, hoping to attract enough votes to refer to bargain with the union...

The bill, sponsored by Sen. William L. Quillen, D-Osgestown, is awaiting action by the Senate and is awaiting action by the House under Committee jurisdiction. It will decide when the House agrees to the floor for a vote.

Earlier the teachers presented a letter to Rep. Terry L. Mann, D-Sherport, as the "spokesman of the work" for the work on behalf of the bill. Mann works in the Newport school system as a vocational education coordinator.

Rep. Steven L. Benhar, D-Letcher, also spoke to the teachers and the president problem of the Senate. Sen. Joe Frasier, D-Vine Grove, stepped in to help the picture taken with REA leaders.

"Attitude Toward Torah"

In giving the Ten Commandments to Moses, God said, "These shall not be the name of the Lord thy God to vain, but Jehovah will not hold him guiltless that saith the name in vain." (Ex. 20:7)

Clearly, the words in vain is not the name lightly and reverently. The person who uses the name of God in a reckless manner will be punished by the Lord. (Lev. 24:16)
