Authorities Following Several Trails In Investigation Into Car Bombings

By WILLIAM FRYEVOJEC, Staff Writer of the Post-Dispatch Staff

Federal authorities say they are following four separate trails in their investigation of the March 10 car bombings in St. Louis. One centers on the St. Louis Ship Co. employee Alan Zang, who authorities say planted a bomb in the house of the victim in the hours before the explosion.

The other three trails are the St. Louis Police Dept. investigation of the St. Louis Ship Co. employee Alan Zang, who authorities say planted a bomb in the house of the victim in the hours before the explosion.

The only other serious investigation that would discuss was the investigation of the St. Louis Police Dept. investigation of the St. Louis Ship Co. employee Alan Zang, who authorities say planted a bomb in the house of the victim in the hours before the explosion.

had convinced Stenographer of any involvement but were continuing to investigate whether Ochsbaum was involved in the FBI's killing.

Ochsbaum was taken off the critical list Saturday, the new list to review had improving conditions at a Paducah hospital. A bomb exploded under his vehicle on the way to work Tuesday at a Paducah motel, making him the fourth victim in what authorities believe are related bombings.

Two persons including Mr. Flynn, were killed in the first three bombings, which occurred within a few miles of each other in south St. Louis County. Ochsbaum and Stenographer did not get along well when they worked together at the St. Louis Ship Co. and a source who asked not to be identified, "The chances are good they did not know each other," he said.

Stenographer reported Ochsbaum to his work and Ochsbaum often told reporters about Ochsbaum's employment at Stenographer's firm, the source said. Finally he reported the case of Ochsbaum to the St. Louis Police Dept. after just three months at the company.

Former St. Louis Ship Co. executive Alan Zang was the man who actually charged Stenographer, the source said. Several months later, Stenographer's name was on a list of St. Louis County employees who were investigated.

Drug 'Angel Dust' Not From Heaven

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Officially, it is used only as a horse tranquilizer, but thousands of American teenagers today use the drug PCP as a stimulant against the law.

Narcotics officials say that PCP, "angel dust," is as good as a stimulant and is used by teenagers to get high. When inhaled with marijuana or paralytic leaves or inhaled in tablet form, PCP can cause nervousness, restlessness and manic agitation.

A few users get into rages. Two died in Rhode Island in 1976. About 100 other deaths are reported in the United States.

As long as someone's making money off a drug, more and more people will produce it, said Steven Bessing, a narcotics detective with the Providence Police Department. "You work as hard as you can to control something like PCP, but it just grows by leaps and bounds. You get the feeling you're shoveling against the tide."

Wegman, U.S. narcotics inspector with the state's Division of Drug Control, says, "PCP abuse is increasing."

ly high here, more so probably than any other drug in the country. It's cheaper than cocaine and sold more easily available. Angel dust is the '60s drug right now with the young."

Ray estimates that 80 percent of PCP users are teenagers. He believes that the lower users are as young as 11 or 12.

Staying below that level of use of PCP's chief dangers is that most users "don't know what the hell they're taking. It's peddled to them as an offshoot of marijuana, but what they're really getting is something much stronger, an animal tranquilizer."

Paul Mack, a research consultant for the state, says that PCP use is increasing because the drug is cheap, that it can be made readily available. He also thinks that changing court patterns are also responsible for its increasing use.

"The kids we see today are spent about everything, but they're not getting high," he says. "PCP is a kind of out-of-control drug. Kids think this is really what it's all about. It's a high in a sense that you get high in a pleasant way. PCP is basically just a horse tranquilizer, but it's not really a hallucinogenic drug," Mr. Mack said. "It's not something they produce to get high in a pleasant way. PCP is basically just a horse tranquilizer, but it's not really a hallucinogenic drug."

Tests In Britain On 'Pill' For Men

LONDON — A hormonal contraceptive pill for men is to be tested by researchers at King's College Hospital, London, and the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, in a trial that will last 18 months. The trials will be led by Dr. John Neill, consultant gynecologist and director of the World Health Organization's Clinical Research Center on Human Reproduction.

Researchers in France, Australia and the United States will also take part in the research to determine how long the pill can be used for before it becomes ineffective.

Smoking, Drinking Costs Are Figured

BOSTON (UPI) — The New England Journal of Medicine reported Thursday that the annual cost of smoking and alcohol in the United States is about $10 billion, or about one-quarter of the total economic cost of all diseases in the nation.

A Journal article stated that the total economic cost, including but not limiting to smoking, was $38.8 billion in 1976. The authors, Bruce Luce and Stuart Schechter of the University of California at Los Angeles, reported that the cost of treatment for diseases directly related to smoking and drinking is about $10 billion.

Fossil Of Oldest Known Flying Creature Found

LONDON (UPI) — A fossil of the oldest known flying creature — a dragonfly with an 8.5-inch wingspan that lived over 300 million years ago — has been found in a lump of amber.

"Eragoneuron boltoni" was discovered in a mine shaft 3,000 feet below the surface in the Bohemian region of Czechoslovakia.
