

Pageant Contestant Puts Emergency Skills to Use

FARBERG (AP) — When Kathy Davis signed up for emergency medical training she never dreamed she would have to use those skills in the middle of the Sitka, Alaska Pageant...

Davis did not win the Mrs. Alaska Pageant, Kristin Tanner of Wasilla took the title. Davis feels like she did something even more important: "If I had to do it all over again, I would do the same thing," she said.

Peel Lawyers Attack Prosecutors, Witness

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska prosecutors have no motive, no weapon and no other physical evidence to prove their case against John Kenneth Peel, and his defense attorney says that leaves more than a reasonable doubt about the accusations against him.

"The state can't tell you why the first shot was fired," Henry said. "The state doesn't have a gun either." She continued, "The state also doesn't have a motive either."

argument with a summary of the state's case. Two jurors who claim they heard shots and a woman's scream shortly before the inventor was found burning near Cook, several people who saw the inventor admit with a white man about, and another who saw a man in a skull headed back toward Peel from the burning boat.

able to rule out Peel as the inventor killer, the defense would have "good" that case. But Webster told jurors they can't toss it against Peel that the defense refused its case without presenting any witnesses, because the burden of proof is on the state.

Plan to Send Students to Russian School Fought

KENAI (AP) — Some Anchor Point parents are protesting a school district plan that would send their children to school in Nikolski, a village of Russian heritage.

religion into the schools," she said. "The only ones who did were the ignorant parents (opposed to sending students to Nikolski)."

area had been going to another school on a space-available basis. When it comes to that, their religious objections would be needed to accommodate the children next year, administrators considered having the children attend Nikolski.

"That on re-investigation, we find we might get by without it, perhaps," Daggert said. "So the problem may be resolved for this year."

Body Unidentified

ANCHORAGE (AP) — A body found in the hold of a fishing vessel has been identified as a Korean man, not a Japanese sailor as earlier believed, the Alaska State Trooper reported.

On April 13, the crew of the fishing vessel Lady Louise reported finding the body of an Oriental man in a fish hold. The body apparently had been scooped up with a load of fish by the bottom dunnage.
