Fires char 4,000 acres

Central Oregon blazes spread

The Associated Press
Fires triggered by lightning last week had consumed more than 4,000 acres of Oregon forests by Monday, authorities said.

The Spring Butte fire near La Pine grew to 855 acres Monday, and smoldering brush in the Warm Springs Indian Reservation ignited and consumed 146 acres.

The Corral Basin blaze near John Day had destroyed 880 acres, according to state and federal fire managers.

The Spring Butte fire six miles west of La Pine spread from 800 acres Monday morning, forestry official Dave Norman said. The fire was about 20 percent contained, and crews hope to have it fully contained by Wednesday, he said. About 440 firefighters were battling the blaze.

Near John Day, fire crews hoped to have the 560-acre Corral Basin fire contained by today.

Jennifer Harris, a spokeswoman for the Malheur National Forest, said 580 firefighters were battling the blaze with planes and helicopters dumping water and fire retardant. An additional 100 firefighters have been called in.

Harris said the fire has been difficult to fight because of strong winds and extreme dryness.

Jim Steele, a spokesman for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, said 300 firefighters from the Burns Indian Affairs, the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and Jefferson County were trying to contain the 146-acre blaze 20 miles northeast of the Kah-Nee-Tah resort area.

Steele said lightning had triggered 19 fires on the reservation since Wednesday night, most of them about midnight, and he suspected his car a short time later as he could go to the bathroom. He said when he left the car, the two men beat him and fled away with his car.

Police were uncertain where the 1.1-mile incident occurred because of the victim's lack of familiarity with the area.

The car was described as a 1981 Honda Civic 4-door with Oregon license plate number BDT 702.

The attackers were described as white, but no other information was available.

County deputies have been joined in their search for the girl by U.S. Forest Service crews, the county horse posse and a local Explorer post, Sprague said.

She disappeared from her home at the state highway direction maintenance complex on Interstate 5, Portland.

As many as 500 fires were started by lightning strikes Wednesday night, and about 75 fire, most of them small are burning in Oregon and Washington, said Ralph Satterthwaite, spokesman at the North West Interagency Coordination Center in Portland.

Lincoln assessor calls it quits

By Frank King The Statesman Journal

NEWPORT — Carl Sanders, Lincoln County's assessor since 1982, closed out his desk Monday and said goodbye to his staff, friends and county officials.

The last eight months have been very hard for me. The 60-year-old assessor said.

"I don't think I can provide the kind of leadership that is expected of me. I want to leave before I make any serious mistakes."

Sanders' wife, Frances, was killed last year, 28 in an auto-pedestrian accident as she was walking to her job as a counselor at Newport High School.

Sanders said his dealing with his wife's death has been difficult.

"I just want to function well in the state old pattern," he said.

Sanders said he wants to build a house, travel, write, and look after some property that he and his wife bought years ago.

County Clerk Gloria McEwen and County Commissioner Andy Zedwick said they were going to miss Sanders.

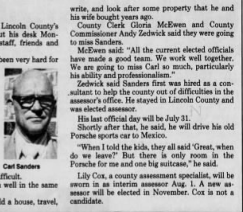

McEwen said: "All the correct elected officials have made a good team. We were all together. We are going to miss Carl so much, particularly his ability and professionalism."

Zedwick said Sanders first was hired as a consultant to help the county out of difficulties in the assessor's office. He stayed in Lincoln County and was elected assessor.

His last official day will be July 31. Shortly after that, he said, he will drive his old Porsche sports car to Mexico.

"When I told the kids, they all said 'Great, when do we leave?' But there is only room in the Porsche for one and one big suitcase," he said.

Lily Cox, a county assessment specialist, will be sworn in as interim assessor Aug. 1. A new assessor will be elected in November. Cox is not a candidate.

Deputies search for body of Salem boy
Police continued their search Monday for the body of a 15-year-old Salem boy apparently drowned in the Willamette River on Sunday.

A Polk County Sheriff Department boat searched the river for the body of Thea Thank You, 1707 Walker Road NE, a day after the boy apparently drowned while swimming with a cousin beneath the train trestle at Wallace Marine Park.

To give credit and was unable to find himself above water at 6 p.m. in the past two days, police said.

Four police divers and an emergency rescue boat searched for the body Sunday night and resumed a surface search Monday after Sheriff Ray Steele of Polk County said.

Divers were not involved with the Monday search because officials believed that the body had been carried by the river's current to shallow water.

"Without a known location where the body can be brought up, the only thing we can do is search on the surface," Steele said. "It can be anywhere down river."

Hitchhikers beat man, take car from him
An 18-year-old Graham man was beaten and robbed of his car Monday by two hitchhikers he picked up near the Middle River, deputy Dave Houser of the Marion County Sheriff Department said.

Details of the incident were sketchy because the victim, who suffered bruises and lacerations but didn't require hospitalization, was a Roman Empire who moved to the United States last two months ago, Houser said.
