

SPORTS / C1

UT begins search to continue legacy of Donna Lopiano

PROJECT EARTH / D1

Backyard bird fans give flying friends a habitat at home

BUSINESS / C3

Job seminar gives tips on getting back to work

WEATHER

High: Mid-70s Low: Mid-60s Cloudy, slight chance of rain. Details, Back page

Austin American-Statesman

50 CENTS PUBLISHED SINCE 1871 TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 1992

Police seek man from yogurt scene

Possible witness at site of killings may be suspect in earlier assault

At right is a police sketch of a man sought as a possible witness in the yogurt case. He reportedly was seen parked outside the yogurt shop on the night of the slayings. A similar sketch, left, shows a suspect in a November assault.

Police on Monday released a sketch of a man wanted for questioning in connection with the yogurt shop murders. The sketch, according to police, resembles that of a suspect in a November assault.

It's Yogurt. 2940 W. Anderson Lane. Warn said a sketch of the man who was a customer of the yogurt store on Oct. 6, 1991, the night Jennifer Harrison, 17, her 15-year-old sister, Sarah, Eliza Thomas, 17, and Amy Ayers, 13, were slain. He said police aren't positive that sketch and the one of the actual assault suspect are of the same man.

End of a long wait

After a wait of three months, Austin rowing partners Gregg Forrester and Anne Helman prepare to launch their boat for a Monday afternoon spin on Town Lake.

Staff photos by Taylor Johnson

SOS election pushed back to Aug. 8

4 City Council abstentions stall petition

By Bob Burns American-Statesman Staff

Chances of a May 2 election on a strict water quality ordinance proposed by an Austin environmental group were swept away in a flood of abstentions Monday by a majority of the City Council.

Mayor Bruce Todd, who backed a May vote, scores the abstentions. 'We are not elected not to vote.'

Clinton, Bush poised to lock up nominations

By Robin Toner New York Times News Service

CHICAGO — Voters in Michigan and Illinois go to the polls today in Democratic and Republican primaries that are expected to give virtual locks on their party nominations to President Bush and Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton.

How can further fuel the question of Clinton's electability. Bowers, who some Democrats believe could knock former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas out of second place in Michigan, Monday pressed a new attack on the ethics of Hillary Clinton's working for a law firm that does business with the state of Arkansas.

Democratic National Convention in July. 'At the convention, there will be one question: Who can best George Bush?' said Tsongas, who is already trying to adjust his position to the next major contests in the Northeast, the March 24 primary in Connecticut and the April

Anxiety grips South Africa before vote on apartheid

By Christopher S. Wren New York Times News Service

JOHANNESBURG — A mood of trepidation and foreboding gripped South Africa as whites prepared to vote today in the referendum that President Frederik de Klerk has called to give a mandate to negotiate an end to minority white rule.

Morales' get-tough stand angers inmate advocates

By David Elliot American-Statesman Columnist

In a brief filed last year with the U.S. Supreme Court, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales sided with Louisiana authorities who said it was not unconstitutional to keep prison inmates as long as they suffered no serious injury.

Race tension still apparent among young

By George E. Curry

NEW YORK — Young Americans born after the civil rights legislation of the mid-1960s are more likely than their parents to interact with members of another race, yet still describe U.S. race relations as "generally bad," a study to be released today suggests.

Inside

Table with 2 columns: Today's sections and Page numbers. Includes News, City & State, Sports, Business, Project Earth, Entertainment, Classified, and Index.